

Common Types of Business Management Committees

01

Working Group

Use Case: When the focus is on specific task or project, often temporary in nature.

Task Force

Use Case: In situations that require rapid response or focused effort on a critical issue.

05

02

Advisory Board

Use Case: When external expertise is needed to guide a business strategy.

Council

Use Case: When there is an ongoing mandate and is intended to provide decision-making.

06

03

Panel

Use Case: Typical for expert groups having the role to evaluate or review something.

Board

Use Case: Senior level managers charged with high-level of oversight responsibilities.

07

04

Forum

Use Case: Used when the primary function is to facilitate decisions through collaboration.

Steering Committee

Use Case: Established for groups focused on guiding particular business initiative or project.

08